Understanding the Rubric

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

Some people believe that television programmes are of no real value for children.

How far do you agree or disagree?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

The Task

Task 2 involves writing an essay on the given topic. You have to

  - from your knowledge
  - from your experience
- spend about 40 minutes on the task

The Answer Sheet

The last two pages of the IELTS writing answer sheet are dedicated to task two and together have 40 lines. Although you may ask for extra sheets to write your answer in, it is not likely to become necessary since the space you are already provided with is way more than sufficient.

Focus on Academic Register

- Use longer sentences (about 20-30 words)
- Use subordinate clauses
- Use formal linkers (subordinators and transitions)
- Use academic words (see “The Academic Words List” at www.tahasoni.com/resources)
- Avoid contractions
- Avoid “get” phrases where possible
- Avoid personal tone except when giving personal opinions or talking of personal experiences
- Avoid phrasal verbs where possible
- Avoid over-generalisation
  - Non-absolute statements
  - Introducing probability/possibility

Task Types

A. Opinion-led:

Some people believe that television programmes are of no real value for children.

How far do you agree or disagree?

B. Argument-led:

Some people think that a sense of competition in children should be encouraged. Others believe that children who are taught to co-operate rather than compete become more useful adults.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

C. Advantage/Disadvantage (Discussion Type):

In some countries, it is usual for young people who graduate from high school to spend a year working or travelling before going to university.

What are the advantages and disadvantages for young people who decide to do this?

D. Advantage/Disadvantage (Opinion Type):

While some people prefer to live in apartments, others do not think an apartment is a suitable form of accommodation.

Do you think the advantages of living in an apartment outweigh the disadvantages?

E1. Problem/Issue (Causes + Solutions):

Housing and accommodation has become a major problem in many countries around the world.

What are some of the main factors that have contributed to this problem?

What can be done to help reduce the number of homeless people?

E2. Problem/Issue (Consequences + Solutions):

While mobile phones have many advantages, a number of problems have also resulted from them or the ways in which they are used.

What are some of these problems?

What solutions can you suggest for solving these problems?

E3. Problem/Issue (Causes + Consequences):

In many countries today insufficient respect is shown to older people

What do you think may be the reasons for this?

What problems might this cause in society?

E4. Mixed:

Universities should provide students with the skills they will require in order to succeed at their future jobs.

How far do you agree or disagree with the above opinion?

What are some of the job skills that employers look for in new employees?

Assessment Criteria

Every report is read four times by an examiner and each time, it will be marked on one of the following criteria:

- Task Response (TR)
- Coherence and Cohesion (CC)
- Lexical Resource (LR)
- Grammatical Range and Accuracy (GRA)

EXAMINER'S USE ONLY
EXAMINER 2 TASK 2	TR	CC	LR	GRA
	UNDERLENGTH	NO OF WORDS	MEMORISED	PENALTY	ILLEGIBLE
	OFF-TOPIC
EXAMINER 1 TASK 2	TR	CC	LR	GRA

Task Response (TR)

In both Academic and General Training Writing tests, Task 2 requires the candidates to formulate and develop a position in relation to a given prompt in the form of a question or statement. Ideas should be supported by evidence, and examples may be drawn from the candidates' own experience. Responses must be at least 250 words in length.

The examiner has the following questions in mind when assessing this aspect of your report:

1. Have you sufficiently addressed all parts of the task?
2. Have you presented a clear response to the questions asked?
3. Have you presented well-developed ideas by presenting, extending and supporting them?
4. Have you avoided over-generalisation and absolute statements?
5. Have you avoided repetitive conclusions or vague/under-developed ideas?

Coherence and Cohesion (CC)

This criterion is concerned with the overall clarity and fluency of the message: how the response organises and links information, ideas and language. Coherence refers to the linking of ideas through logical sequencing. Cohesion refers to the varied and appropriate use of cohesive devices (for example, logical connectors, pronouns and conjunctions) to assist in making the conceptual and referential relationships between and within sentences clear.

The examiner has the following questions in mind when assessing this aspect of your report:

1. Have you organised your information logically?
2. Is there an overall flow or progression in your report?
3. Have you organised the text in paragraphs logically and sufficiently?
4. Have you used linkers correctly, properly and sufficiently?
5. Have pronouns been used correctly and do they have clear references?
6. Have you avoided linker over-use/under-use?

Lexical Resource (LR)

This criterion refers to the range of vocabulary the candidate has used and the accuracy and appropriacy of that use in terms of the specific task.

The examiner takes the following points into account when assessing this aspect of your report:

1. Words
  - a. Range and flexibility
  - b. Level
  - c. Precision
  - d. Style
  - e. Collocation
2. Vocabulary mistakes
  - a. Spelling
  - b. Word choice
  - c. Word formation

Note: when evaluating mistakes, the effect each has on the reader and the intelligibility of your report is taken into account.

Grammatical Range and Accuracy (GRA)

This criterion refers to the range and accurate use of the candidate's grammatical resource as manifested in the candidate's writing at the sentence level.

The examiner has the following questions in mind when assessing this aspect of your report:

1. Have you used a variety of sentence structures?
2. How often have you used compound structures?
3. Mistakes
  - a. Grammar
  - b. Punctuation

Note: when evaluating mistakes, the effect each has on the reader and the intelligibility of your report is taken into account.

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

Some people think newspaper is the most effective way to obtain the latest information because it has more influence than other forms of media.

Do you agree or disagree?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

In some countries, it is illegal for companies to reject job applicants for their age.

Is this a positive or negative development?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

Some people argue that it is not wise for an industry to replace its experienced but old workers with new and young yet inexperienced individuals.

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

In the past people often worked in their businesses until they died or were no longer able to continue, whereas today most industries have set a definite retirement age for their employees. I personally disagree that replacing elderly staff with young recruits would be unwise. (45 words)

First and foremost, a large majority of workers lose their strength as they become older. This is mainly because the human body has limits and working for a long time, say, 30 or 35 years, can affect it negatively. For example, young industrial workers tend to work for five to six hours before they take breaks while older ones usually need to rest every one or two hours. This means that productivity levels would certainly decline. (76 words)

Furthermore, new employment opportunities for young people are very limited. Most companies do not offer more than a few new jobs every year and try not to increase their staff members dramatically to keep expenses low. Consequently, they should definitely lay off some of the older personnel to make room for youths, especially those around 20 to 30 years old who are about to form families and support them. (69 words)

Finally, although some people might argue that the experience and skills of old workers would be lost when they retire, they should remember that this experience is mostly with old or outdated equipment and technologies. As a result, it is less likely that their employers will need their abilities in the long run and younger workers can be trained to work with modern machines such as computers and lasers. (69 words)

In conclusion, I believe companies need to force their elderly workforce to retire and employ younger workers to replace them. (20 words)

The history of human civilisation is mainly dominated by male characters. Most countries have been shaped by male kings and commanders, and science was long considered to be a quest for men. However, following attempts by British and American women at attaining equal rights in the previous century, debates were initiated over whether or not men and women can be given the same credit in all fields and activities. Some believe the two sexes are naturally different while others insist they can reach the same skill levels given the right training.

The proponents of the "equal abilities" argument have several reasons that need to be taken into consideration. First and foremost, they argue that today, women are competing with men in almost every field, especially at sports such as football and boxing. Moreover, it is becoming more and more evident that women are doing better at areas previously designated to men. For instance, male chefs have dominated European restaurants for centuries, but now female chefs have emerged that are winning cooking contests and working in ~~some~~<sup>either</sup> top hotels and restaurants all over the world. It is also argued that universities are being forced to open male-only courses such as mining engineering to female candidates who end up working as well as men - or in cases even better.

However, the ~~opponents~~<sup>OPPONENTS</sup> of this idea have reasons that cannot be ignored. Most importantly, it is clear that the physical features and <sup>the</sup> physiology of men and women are very different, which practically leads to a contrast between the capabilities of the two. This, they argue, has led to women <sup>recently</sup> even resorting to consume hormones to improve their power and stamina in order to compete with their male ~~counterparts~~<sup>COMPETITORS</sup>. Also, most people can notice <sup>a</sup> difference in men's and women's attitudes when working together. This in practice makes them take different approaches to solving problems which ~~arises~~ have their roots in their emotional levels. For example, I have noticed that software <sup>companies</sup> teams usually employ female designers due to women's ability at working with details, but refrain from giving project management roles to female developers due to their inability to realise the bigger picture.

In conclusion, having studied both these arguments, I have personally come to believe that neither opinion is perfect and represents the reality of the sexes. Thus I think while the two genders have different natural abilities, ~~and~~ traits and skill sets which make them unique at doing certain tasks ~~most~~ perfectly, either can reach the ~~other~~ <sup>other one's</sup> skill level through training ~~and~~ ~~provided~~ - required they ~~can~~ have the will power to do so. Nevertheless, in my opinion, the perfect situation can only be ~~reached~~ reached when teams of male and female colleagues work together to share their attitudes, skills and approaches ~~and~~ <sup>while completing</sup> what each of them lacks or is short of in every field.

Some people think secondary school students should study international news as one of their subjects. Other people say this is a waste of valuable school time.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

The world today has become quite dynamic and news stories develop almost every minute. Some people think reviewing the news need to become a high school subject while another group disagrees. (31 words)

Reviewing global news could have a number of benefits for students. Firstly, this would definitely improve their general knowledge in areas like geography, since the news come from around the world and often include lots of details about different locations, their customs and manners. Therefore, they would possibly gain a better understanding of the world and its features. Secondly, studying the news can develop the students' ability to analyse sophisticated situations because when they follow a story, say, about a political rift between two countries, they could observe how it develops or escalates, how the parties involved act and what consequences are. (102 words)

Nevertheless, there are some arguments against teaching international news at high schools. Most importantly, the violence portrayed in many of today's news stories could affect students' conduct. For instance, almost every newspaper and news website these days is filled with images and stories of the Syrian civil war, which are likely to make youngsters feel insecure or make unreasonable judgements about any Arab friends they might have. Furthermore, reading and analysing the news would probably be a time consuming activity which could lead to less time remaining for more important subjects and activities like sciences, math or physical education. (99 words)

In conclusion, I personally believe it is wise for secondary school students to study global news at school, but it would be wise if stories are chosen and adapted for the class by a group of educational experts and psychologists to avoid the negative effects discussed above. (47 words)

Some people support modern developments in agriculture such as factory farming and creation of new types of fruits and vegetables. However, other people oppose this view.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

Recently, there have been extensive developments and improvements in various aspects of agriculture, including genetically modifying plants to create new types or factory farming. While a group of people think these developments are reasonable, others reject them. (37 words)

One advantage of modern farming improvements is that they can provide more food for the growing populations, especially in the developing world, since many new types of plants can produce heavier fruits or more seeds. For instance, I recently read that Iranian scientists had created a new kind of wheat plant that yielded over two times as much wheat as ordinary types. Furthermore, new methods like factory farming would certainly make many demanding agricultural tasks like milking cows and feeding various farm animals easier since they rely on automatic machines for doing such farm duties. (95 words)

Nevertheless, some people argue that changing the genetic structure of plants is highly likely to be dangerous, as it would be almost impossible for scientists to fully predict the results of such a change. For instance, a new plant that is supposed to be more productive might become poisonous for humans or animals. Also, many animal rights activists think factory farming and similar modern agricultural methods are cruel to animals because they are usually kept in closed buildings, fed by machines and sometimes even killed in painful ways using automatic slaughtering systems. (92 words)

Personally, I think modern farming and agricultural methods are inevitable and necessary to meet the urgent need for more food worldwide. Therefore, governments should invest in agricultural research and development to increase farm yields and develop farming sufficiently to match the needs of today's world. (45 words)

Some people think that strict punishments for driving offences are the key to reducing traffic accidents. Others, however, believe that other measures would be more effective in improving road safety.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

Road accidents claim the lives of large numbers of drivers and pedestrians every year and have turned into a matter of distress in many countries, including my own. It has been argued that drivers who ignore the law should be fined severely to reduce the number of accidents, whereas some believe in other solutions. (54 words)

One could hardly cast doubt on the effectiveness of penalties and fines in the reduction of accidents. One reason is that many crashes are due to drivers driving carelessly and ignoring laws like speed limits, threatening the lives of other, law-abiding citizens. If such drivers are incarcerated or heavily fined, it is highly likely that they and others will observe driving regulations more closely and fewer accidents would occur. Furthermore, the government could use the fines it collects from noncompliant drivers to provide better transport facilities such as standard roads or offer rewards to those who drive properly. (98 words)

However, there are various other means of decreasing the number of traffic accidents. First of all, driving license candidates could be required to sit courses aiming at educating them on the virtues of heeding the law while on the road. As a result, they are more likely to realise why driving carefully could benefit both themselves and the people around them. Moreover, new cars could be built in such a way that they restrict the drivers' ability to commit traffic offences like illegal speeding or turns. For instance, the car's computer could decrease its maximum speed in residential areas or near intersections. (102 words)

In conclusion, I personally think that both fines and other actions like educational schemes and smart automobiles can have strong impacts on reducing driving accidents and need to be implemented. (30 words)

Nowadays, we are producing more and more rubbish.

Why do you think this is happening?

What can government do to help reduce the amount of rubbish produced?

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

Today, many cities around the world face an increasing amount of garbage produced by citizens. This essay aims to investigate the causes of this and also put forward a number of solutions. (18 words)

There are many reasons why so much rubbish is produced. One important factor is the consumerist lifestyle of many people today which has led to them buying and consuming more products such as food, clothes and home appliances. As a result, more packaging is thrown away everyday which creates a lot of rubbish. Furthermore, many families do not separate reusable garbage like cans or glass jars from the rest since they are too tired or busy. The main reason for this is that a majority of parents have to work long hours out of home to make enough money for their families. (102 words)

Governments can do various things to decrease the amount of garbage. Firstly, they can legislate laws to limit the garbage produced by households to a certain level, say, a kilogram every day. As a result, people would definitely try to buy only the things which they need to avoid throwing away too much. This is likely to be very effective although it might not be so popular, especially in large cities. Also, governments could invest in building recycling plants so that more garbage is reused to produce new products. For example, they could use plastic bottles to make new plastic balls or computer parts. (104 words)

In conclusion, the reasons behind the rise in waste production include consumerism and people not recycling, and possible solutions are laws to restrict household garbage as well as building recycling centres. (31 words)

Brainstorming:

Causes:

- Fast technological progress → youngsters know more about everyday stuff than the elderly → they don't think they should learn from older people → less respect
- The problems that old people have experience in solving are different from today's issues → old people no longer act as respectable problem solvers → less respect

Effects:

- Less respect → Young people may think old people are jobless parasites → young people think pensions are not justified
- Less respect → Experience shared by the elderly will not be appreciated → many problems will no longer be easily solved through that experience

Answer by E. Tahasoni:

In many modern communities, young people no longer appreciate old age as a symbol of reverence. This essay will try to identify the factors contributing to this and also explain some of the issues it is likely to create in modern communities. (42 words)

One could think of various reasons why the youth of today do not respect the elderly much. First and foremost, the rapid pace of technological progress in today's world has led to youngsters knowing more about commonly used technologies such as email or internet television. Consequently, they seldom feel the need to learn from the elderly whose knowledge and experience might seem rather outdated so their respect for them would decline. Moreover, many youngsters do not view old people as respectable and experienced problem solvers because the problems they face now tend to be quite different from those experienced by the older generation. (103 words)

The social problems this new attitude is likely to create cannot be ignored. Most importantly, youths might start to question the justifiability of high pensions for old people because they would think there is no reason for supporting those who stay at home watching the news rather than work like younger people have to. In addition, the younger generation is likely to find issues like effective and successful child rearing very difficult to handle since many may start to neglect the advice and experience shared by the elderly. (88 words)

To conclude, I think disrespect towards the elderly has been caused by advances in technology as well as changes in social problems, and in turn could lead to reductions in pensions and challenges for the youth. (36 words)

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

Universities should provide students with the skills they will require in order to succeed at their future jobs.

How far do you agree or disagree with the above opinion?

What are some of the job skills that employers look for in new employees?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

Example paragraph 3 (“items” body paragraph):

There are various abilities that new employees today are required to have. Firstly, they need to have good communicative skills like letter writing so that they can communicate their ideas while understanding what their colleagues or clients think. Secondly, employees should be able to manage their time efficiently because they have to finish various tasks before their respective deadlines. Finally, many companies seek workers who can use computers effectively to handle office and business tasks. For instance, almost all modern construction companies require new engineers to know how to design buildings or manage projects using software like AutoCAD or Microsoft Project. (101 words)

A Quick Guide to Punctuation in IELTS

Basically, the two punctuation marks you will need to use in IELTS reports, letters and essays are the full stop and comma. Exclamation (!) and question marks (?) might also be used in General Training letters, while parentheses could be used in Academic reports as well as in letters.

You are advised to avoid using the colon (:), semi-colon (;) and dashes (–) if you do not know where they need to be used, since they are unnecessary.

Full Stop (.)

Full stops are generally used to mark the end of a sentence:

There has been a dramatic increase in the population of urban regions.

Comma (,)

Commas are used in longer sentences to separate information into readable units. They also often separate clauses in a sentence and sometimes come before a coordinator (e.g. “and”, “but”, etc.)

- A single comma ensures correct reading of a sentence which starts with a long introductory element:
Following efforts by pioneering scientists in the field of ecology, it has now been generally accepted that the world is gradually becoming warmer.
- A single comma is used after many starting linkers like “however”, “moreover”, “basically” and such:
In contrast, water levels in Africa and Australia declined to reach an all-time low.
- Pairs of commas help in the middle of a sentence to set off any string of words which is either a parenthesis, or in contrast, to whatever went before:
A student, whether at school or university, needs to receive guidance and instructions on how to use resources effectively and efficiently.
- Sets of commas act as a means of separating items in a list:
Workplaces like business offices, banks and schools would certainly require a more formal dress code.

Note: do not add a comma after “that” at the beginning of a clause:

It has been known for some time that many flaws in children’s behavior have roots in their genes.

Giving an opinion

Use the following ideas to formulate sentences which represent your personal view on a given subject. Please note that this is only a small portion of the possible structures, as you may find a great deal more in vocabulary/grammar books written for the IELTS as well as in sample essays and other authentic IELTS resources.

The police should be in close contact with schools
They should focus on young people who have dropped out of school.
These teenagers may become involved with gangs

Punishments/Prisons

Fines are used as punishment for minor crimes
If the crime is more serious, prison is the most common punishment
Some criminals pose a threat to society
They are put in prison to ensure the safety of other citizens

Negatives of Prisons

Criminals are put together
They make friends with other offenders
Many prisoners re-offend when they are released
A criminal record makes finding a job more difficult

Rehabilitation

Another aim of prisons is rehabilitation
Prisoners receive education of vocational training
Prisoners should learn personal skills and specific job skills
Punishment could make prisoners' behavior worse
Rehabilitation aims to make them better citizens
Rehabilitated prisoners are less likely to re-offend

Capital punishment

Supporters say that capital punishment deters crime
Fear of the death penalty stops people from committing offences
The death penalty shows that crime is not tolerated
It is a form of revenge
The cost of imprisonment is avoided
The offender cannot pose a threat to others

Against Capital Punishment

Innocent people could be wrongly convicted and executed

Students can do research using online resources
Students can study at their own place
Adults can take distance learning courses
Students can study whenever and wherever they want
Students also learn skills which are useful for their future jobs
For example, they learn to write reports using a word processor

Technology in Education: Disadvantages

People rely too much on computers
Young learners do not become proficient in some basic skills

People should be able to write a letter by hand
Technology is no substitute for a real teacher
Learners need a structured course
An experienced teacher knows what materials to choose
Computers are expensive to maintain and can be unreliable

Technology in Education: Opinion

Institutions should supplement traditional teaching with the use of technology
Technology is part of everyday life
It can enhance a teacher's lessons
Students can use online resources to help with homework
Students must still learn to write by hand
They should still use traditional sources of information such as books

Education in Developing countries: Problems

Children often have to work from an early age
There are no schools in many areas
Families do not have access to books or computers
Literacy rates are often low
People in developing countries need knowledge and skills
Education is the key to improving the economy of these countries

They could supply the funds to build schools and pay for teachers
Children need to have access to free schooling
Computer equipment could be donated
The Internet can expose students to a world of knowledge and information
Governments should make education compulsory for all children
They should encourage parents to send their children to school
Governments of developed and developing countries must work together

There are many benefits to going to university
A degree can open the door to better employment prospects
Economies are becoming increasingly knowledge-based
Most jobs require specific knowledge and skills
Skilled workers are needed for sectors such as information technology and engineering
Repetitive manual jobs are now done by machine
Many factories have moved to developing countries

Higher education: Disadvantages

A healthy economy needs a wide range of workers
Some manual workers will always be needed
A university degree is not necessary for many service professions
Practical training is more important in some industries
In the UK, for example, there is currently a shortage of plumbers
Their services are therefore becoming more and more expensive

Advantage of Home-schooling

Some parents decide to educate their children at home
Some families live in isolated areas with poor transport
Other parents are not satisfied with local schools

They need to create a positive working atmosphere
Teachers must have the power to punish disruptive students
Schools should remove difficult children from lessons
Schools need to work closely with parents
Discipline could be lacking at home
Parents must support the school rules
They should take responsibility for their children's behavior

Corporal Punishment: Opinion

Corporal Punishment is not a good idea

This does not promote trust between adults and children
Children who are punished physically may become shy or resentful
Corporal punishment creates an atmosphere of fear and anger

Single Sex Education: Advantages

Some people believe that male and female students should go to separate schools
This is often for religious or cultural reasons
Discipline problems might be avoided by separating boys and girls
Boys and girls may learn in different ways and have different needs

Student at single-sex schools often get better exam grades.

Single-sex Education: Disadvantages

Separating boys and girls is unnecessary
It is unhealthy in terms of children's social development
Many coeducational schools are extremely successful
A mixed-sex environment is more representative of real life
Coeducational schools provide children with better social skills for adult life

Advantages of Streaming (grouping children according to ability)

Some schools separate students according to their academic ability
Teachers can work at the right speed for their students
Teachers can plan more suitable lessons
High-level groups may progress faster
Lower level groups can benefit from a slower pace
Some teachers and parents support streaming for these reasons

Disadvantages of Streaming

Grouping by ability may have a negative impact on students
Children do not want to be seen as less intelligent than others
Streaming could damage students' self esteem
They may lose motivation
Students from wealthier families tend to be better prepared
Children from poorer families may receive less support from parents
Mixed ability classes encourage everyone to achieve their potential.

6. Environment

Global warming

Gases such as carbon dioxide trap heat from the sun
This causes global temperatures to rise
This process is known as the greenhouse effect
Human activity is a major factor in the rise of the greenhouse gases
Factories and vehicles produce emissions and exhaust fumes
Many developing countries are becoming industrialized
The number of cars on our streets is growing
Cheap air travel is allowing more people to fly

Effects of Global Warming

Global warming will have a significant impact on our planet
Rising temperature will cause melting of the polar ice caps

Sea levels will rise
We can expect more extreme weather conditions
Flooding and droughts may become more common

Impacts of humans on the environment

The increasing world population is putting pressure on natural resources
Fossil fuels like oil and gas are running out
We are destroying wildlife habitats
We have cut down enormous areas of rainforest
This has led to the extinction of many species of animals and plants

Solutions to environment problems

Governments could introduce laws to limit emissions from factories
They should invest in renewable energy from solar, wind or water power
They could impose “green taxes” on drivers and airlines companies
Government campaigns should promote recycling
Natural areas and wild animals should be protected
Individuals should also try to be greener
We should take fewer flights abroad for holidays
We should take public transport rather than driving
We should choose products with less packaging

Waste/rubbish

The amount of waste we produce has increased
This problem is a result of our consumer culture
Products are not made to last
If something breaks, we throw it away and buy a new one
Advertisers encourage us to buy the newest fashions
Packaging is an important part of selling
Most foods are sold in non-biodegradable plastics packaging
The amount of household waste is growing
This waste ends up in landfill sites

Litter

People do not think about the consequences of dropping rubbish
They assume that somebody is paid to clean the street
Plastic packaging does not break down easily
Most of the litter seen on streets is fast food packaging

Recycling and other solutions

Companies should make goods that last longer
They should not use so much packaging
Governments should be stricter about waste produced by companies
They should put legal limits on packaging
Consumers should avoid buying over-packaged products

We should recycle and reuse useful materials.
There are collection banks for glass, paper and plastic bottles
Households can use several rubbish bins to separate waste
Recycling saves energy and raw materials.

Nuclear Power: Positives

There are several benefits to build more nuclear power stations
Fossil fuel like oil and gas are running out
Nuclear power is a sustainable energy source
It can be used to produce electricity without wasting natural resources
It could replace the use of natural resources like coal, oil or gas
Nuclear power stations are cleaner than fossil fuel power stations
They could help to reduce carbon emissions that cause global warming
The risks of accidents are being reduced

Nuclear Power: negatives

Opponents of nuclear power worry about the safety of power stations
The building of new nuclear power stations is unpopular
Nobody wants to live near one
Nuclear waste disposal is a significant problem
There is currently no way to decontaminate radioactive material
People worry that terrorists could steal radioactive materials
It is safer to produce energy from solar, wind or water power.

7. Family

Family size

Families in many countries are not as large as they used to be
We tend to live in small nuclear families rather than large extended families
Parents tend to have fewer children
Young children are no longer expected to work
Nowadays both parents often work

Residential homes provide care for large number of elderly people
Some families are unable to look after elderly relatives
Families tend to be smaller these days, and women often have full-time jobs
Care homes provide a professional service for senior citizens
Nurses are better trained than family members

Care for Old people: Opinion

The best form of care for the elderly depends on the family situation
It depends on whether family members have the time resources
We all have a responsibility towards the older people in our society
Governments should invest money in facilities and training for care workers.

8. Gender

Gender and education

Men and women should have access to the same educational opportunities
Males and females should be accepted onto courses according to their abilities
It is wrong to discriminate against students because of their gender
Gender should be irrelevant in education
Student's achievements should depend on hard work and individual merit
In the UK, there are similar numbers of male and female students in higher education

Gender and work

Men and women should have access to the same professional opportunities
Both men and women should be able to pursue a career
They should earn equal salaries

Traditionally women have been restricted to certain roles
They were often employed as secretaries or receptionists
Nowadays, a range of occupations is available to both sexes
Career success depends on individual merit

Women's and Men's roles in the Family

Some people argue that a mother should not work
She should stay at home and bring up her children

Many mothers continue to work after this period
Many fathers and mothers share their parenting and domestic responsibilities
They contribute equally to childcare, cooking and cleaning
Some women many have better career prospects than their husbands.
Paternity leave and "househusbands" are becoming more common
Traditional gender roles are gradually changing
Families can divide roles and responsibilities in the most convenient way.

9. Genetic Engineering

Positives of genetic engineering

Genetic engineering is the practice of manipulating the genes of an organism

Some genetically modified crops grow more quickly
Some drugs and vaccines are produced by genetic engineering
It may become possible to change human's genetic characteristics.
Scientists may use genetic engineering to cure diseases.
Inherited illnesses would no longer exist
Genes could be changed before a baby is born
It could also be possible to clone human organs
We could all have replacement body part
Humans could live longer, healthier lives

Negatives of genetic engineering

There are ethical concerns about human genetic engineering
Parents might want to choose their children's characteristics
This would be unnatural
It would be unacceptable in most religions
Soldiers could be cloned from the genes of the strongest people
Clones might be used like robots to do certain jobs
Clones might even be developed just for organ replacements
Society and human evolution would change completely
Currently, human genetic engineering is prohibited

Genetically-Modified (GM) foods: Advantages

Farmers can produce crops that grow bigger and faster
Some GM crops are more resistant to disease or insects
This could be important for food production in developing countries

Faster growing cereals, fruit and vegetables will mean more profit

GM foods can be modified to look perfect

They may be more attractive to customers

Genetically-Modified (GM) Foods: Disadvantages

There may be risks involved in the genetic engineering of foods.

GM crops might change whole ecosystems

Food chains could be broken if crops are resistant to predators

Organic foods are produced without chemicals or genetic modification

Organic farming may be slower and more expensive

However, the environment is not damaged by fertilizers or pesticides.

10. Global issues

Immigration also creates cultural diversity

People of many different nationalities learn to live together

This can help people to become more open-minded and tolerant

Negatives of Immigration

Some people believe that immigrants take jobs that should go to local people
Some immigrant workers work longer hours for less money
Companies might pay lower salaries to immigrant workers
Unemployment rates could rise if there are too many immigrants

Opinions about Immigration

Immigration can help the economy of a country
It can create multi-cultural societies
However, immigration needs to be controlled
In many countries, immigrants need visas or work permit
Governments should stop companies from exploiting immigrant workers
Foreign and local workers should have the right to equal pay and conditions

Positives of Globalization

Business is becoming increasingly international
Multi-national companies do business across the world
Companies like MacDonald's can be seen on high streets in most cities
Goods are produced in one country and sold in many others
A global economy means free trade between countries
This can strengthen political relationships
Globalization can also create opportunities for employment
It encourages investment in less developed countries
It could reduce poverty in the developing world

Negatives of Globalization

Globalization is not always beneficial to everyone
Companies can move to countries where labour is cheap
This creates redundancies, or job losses
Employees cannot be confident that they have stable jobs
Companies sometimes exploit their employees in developing countries
Global trade creates more waste and pollution

The future of Globalization

There should be global regulations for salaries and working conditions
Governments should impose laws to protect the environment

11. Government and Society*What governments can do

Governments provide public services like healthcare and education
They support people who are living in poverty or unable to work
Governments raise money by taxing working people
They can spend money on resources and campaigns
They can introduce new laws
They can impose taxes
They can raise people's awareness of issues (e.g climate change/healthy eating)
They can influence people's habits and opinions
They can create jobs

They can regulate the activities of companies such as banks

Some governments control public transport systems and even TV channels
In other countries, these services are provided by private companies
Some people believe that competition between private companies is good
It helps to improve quality while bringing prices down
Other people think that essential services should be free
Governments should pay for them

Censorship: Opinion

Governments can censor what public sees or reads in the media
To a certain extent censorship is necessary
We should use censorship to protect children from violent images
Some computer games involve killing people or committing crimes
The Internet also needs to be controlled
Many websites show pornography and violence
There should be age limits for websites and computers games
Parents need to take responsibility for checking what their children watch
It is impossible for governments to control everything we see

Video cameras in public places

The use of CCTV is becoming widespread
Video cameras have been installed in many public places
They are supposed to protect us and deter criminals
Many people think that this surveillance violates our privacy
The authorities could build databases with our pictures and identities
We should not be treated like criminals

IELTS Grammar Exercise 6

IELTS Grammar Exercise 6 is a review of singular and plural verb forms in the English language:

When writing an essay for the IELTS exam, be sure to identify the grammatical subject of your sentence, especially if the grammatical subject contains prepositional phrases. This will help you to understand whether you need a singular or plural verb.

Singular grammatical subject + singular verb: The child in boy scouts knows how to light a fire.

child = singular subject; knows = verb; ["scouts" is part of a prepositional phrase]

Plural grammatical subject: Many residents of the local community are on good terms with one another.

Residents = plural subject; are = verb; ["community" is part of a prepositional phrase]

Look at the grammar examples above. Then complete the exercises below by using the grammatically correct form of the verb.

(1) Most of my classmates _____ (agree / agrees) with me.

(2) Ten euros _____ (is / are) the price.

IELTS Grammar Exercise 7

---

IELTS Grammar Exercise 7 is a review of conditional sentence structures in the English language:

In spoken English, the phrase "if I were you" is used to give advice.

Example: If I were you, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

The phrase "in your shoes" can be used instead of "you" in conversational English.

The phrases "in your position" and "in your situation" can also be used instead of "you" and are more formal than "in your shoes".

Examples:

If I were in your shoes, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

If I were in your position, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

If I were in your situation, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

This type of advice can be made more formal by putting the word "were" first in the sentence. This sentence structure is known as the subjunctive.

Look at these examples of grammatically correct conditional sentences:

Were I you, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

Were I in your position, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

Were I in your situation, I would try to finish the assignment on time.

Look at the grammar examples above. Then complete the exercises below by making grammatically correct sentences out of the jumbled words.

Unit 1 Tense revision

Use

- 1 A verb phrase will give information about:
  - time, or when something happened.
  - aspect, eg whether an action is complete or incomplete, permanent or temporary.
- 2 The simple aspect is used for actions or events which we think are finished or permanent.
Present simple: used for facts, opinions and regularly occurring actions or events, eg There are many highly respected universities in America. I live in London and travel to work by train.
Past simple: used for regularly occurring or completed past actions or events, eg I attended university in London. I travelled on the Underground.
- 3 The continuous aspect (to be + present participle) is used for actions or events we think are incomplete, involving change or temporary.
Present continuous: used for temporary or incomplete present actions or events, eg The number of students attending university is decreasing, but we hope to see an improvement in numbers.
Past continuous: used for incomplete or interrupted past actions or events, eg The school was preparing its students for final exams when bad weather forced it to close.
- 4 The perfect aspect (to have + past participle) is used when we look back from one time to an earlier time.
Present perfect (simple or continuous): used for a present action or event which is connected to the past because it is still continuing or recently completed eg Numbers have been falling since last month. I've just received my exam results.
Past perfect (simple or continuous): used to describe a past action or event that happened before another past action or event, eg The government had predicted that student numbers would improve, but instead they fell. Universities had been warning the government for some time before it acted.

- 5 These are the main ways in which we refer to the future in English:

Future simple: used to refer to facts or to state beliefs about the future, eg I'll be twenty years old on my next birthday. I don't think there will be an end to world conflict.

Going to: used for predictions where there is evidence for the prediction or to state intentions, eg I don't feel well – I think I'm going to be sick! I'm going to study Architecture at university.

Present continuous: used to describe arrangements, eg We're flying to Paris tomorrow.

Future perfect: used for actions or events we believe will be completed by a point of time in the future, eg By the end of the year I'll have completed university.

Future continuous: used to describe actions or events we believe will be in progress at a point of time in the future. Example: In five years, time fewer young people will be studying abroad.

See Unit 9 for more information on future tenses.

- 6 In academic English, verbs in the simple aspect are the most common and present simple is the most common tense.

Form

Regular and irregular verbs:

Present simple: increase; rise

Past simple: increased; rose

Future simple: will increase; will rise

Present continuous: am / is / are increasing; am / is / are rising

Past continuous: was / were increasing; was / were rising

Future continuous: will be increasing / will be rising

Present perfect: have / has increased; have / has risen

Past perfect: had increased; had risen

Future perfect: will have increased; will have risen

Present perfect continuous: have / has been increasing; have / has been rising

Past perfect continuous: had been increasing; had been rising

There is/was ...

Use

- 1 When we say that something 'is' or exists we can start the sentence with There + be. In these sentences, there is is the grammatical subject and the real subject, or what we are talking about, comes after the verb.

eg There are many reasons why I felt it necessary to ask you here today. eg Look! There's snow on the ground. (many reasons and snow are the real subjects of the sentences.)

- 2 There + be is usually used to introduce new information or topics. This new information is usually in the form of an indefinite noun or pronoun.

eg There is a lamp on the table (new information/indefinite) is more likely than There is the lamp on the table (known information/definite).

eg There is someone at the door is more likely than There is John at the door.

Form

- 1 We use a singular form of to be before a singular or countable noun, and a plural form before a plural noun. This remains true if there is more than one noun after the verb, eg There are some tools and a bucket in the shed, but There is a bucket and some tools in the shed.

- 2 We can use there as a grammatical subject with all tenses of the verb to be.

- 3 Be careful with the word order of there + be clauses when to be is followed by a participle. In these sentences the participle does not separate to be and the noun following it.

eg There are 24 teams competing in the tournament, NOT There ~~are~~ competing 24 teams in the tournament.

There has been an investigation ordered into the death, NOT There ~~has been~~ ordered an investigation into the death.

- 4 There is often used with modal verbs and seem. In these sentences we use an infinitive form of to be.

eg There must be/has to be a reason for this. There should be / ought to be someone here to help you. There seems to be a mistake.

Practice

- 1 Complete the table.

Present simple	decrease	fall
Past simple	1	fell
Future simple	2 will decrease	3
Present continuous	is decreasing	4
Past continuous	5	6
Future continuous	7	8
Present perfect	9	has fallen
Past perfect	10	11
Future perfect	12	13
Present perfect continuous	has been increasing	14
Past perfect continuous	15	16

- 2 For a Task 1 Writing question the tenses you use must match the times given in the diagram. Complete the following sentences by putting the verb in brackets into the most appropriate tense. Name each tense.

- The number of students choosing Business _____ (increase) considerably throughout the 1980s.
- If the trend continues, by 2025 the percentage of graduates _____ (double).
- For the last five years, on the job training _____ (rise) steadily.
- Figures for this year _____ (reveal) a slight drop.

- The cost of subsidies, which _____ (fall) throughout the 1990s, _____ (begin) to rocket in 2000.

Unit 2 Sentences and their subjects

Sentences

Use

- 1 We use sentences to make statements, ask questions, or to make requests or give commands. A sentence can also be an exclamation.
- 2 We use conjunctions, eg and, because, if, since to show relationships between ideas in a sentence.
eg Many young people say that they smoke because they are unhappy.
Because links the reason for the action with the action.
eg Six out of ten boys and seven out of ten girls feel pressured by schoolwork.
We use and to add one piece of information to another.
Note: Conjunctions and other linking expressions are covered in Unit 8.
- 3 To use English effectively you need to know
  - the meaning of conjunctions and other linking expressions in English
  - how to use them grammatically in a sentence.

Form

- 1 A simple sentence contains one clause with a noun phrase (subject) and a verb phrase. The verb phrase must have a tense:
eg Many young people feel unhappy, but NOT Many young people feeling unhappy
- 2 A compound or complex sentence contains two or more clauses joined by a conjunction. We often omit subjects and auxiliary verbs after and, but or or.
eg Many young people feel unhappy but (they) lack understanding of how to deal with their emotions. (The sentence has two clauses.)
eg When the children were asked about quality of life, England was in the bottom half of the league, while Dutch, Swedish and Greek young people were the happiest. (The sentence has three clauses.)

Sentence subjects

Use

- 1 Statements and questions in English must have a grammatical subject. See Unit 1 for sentences beginning with There + to be ...

eg There is a book on the table, but NOT
Is a book on the table

It is raining, but NOT Is raining

- 2 The sentence subject is often the agent, or person or thing responsible for an action.
eg Alex put the book on the table.
- 3 With verbs that describe states, eg is, live, know the subject is often the person or thing experiencing an action or state.
eg Yun is a doctor. She lives in China.
- 4 With a passive verb the subject is usually the person or thing affected by the action.
eg The bank was robbed yesterday.

Form

Subjects may take the following forms:

- Noun: John is a doctor.
- Pronoun: He is married to Alice.
- -ing clause: Swimming is his hobby.
- Infinitive clause: To become a doctor was John's childhood ambition.

Then, during his higher education at the Zurich Polytechnic he skipped most of his classes, hating them because of the Polytechnic's regimented methods.
(h) He continued his studies alone.

Unit 3 Compound adjectives

Use

Compound adjectives are used to condense a lot of information in few words. They are more common in writing than in speech.

There are two main types of compound adjectives:

- 1 Compound adjectives which are original to the text in which they occur. These words will not usually be found in a dictionary.
Example: oil-rich shales; hydrogen fuel-cell activity
- 2 Compound adjectives which are used so commonly that they have become part of the vocabulary of the English language. These words will usually be found in a dictionary
Example: a short-sighted policy = a policy which shows little thought for what is likely to happen in the future

Form

- 1 The most commonly used compound adjectives are formed in the following ways:
  - 1 adverb + adjective, eg environmentally friendly
  - 2 adverb + participle, eg highly strung; well-known
  - 3 adjective + participle, eg best-selling; hard-working; ready-made; short-sighted
  - 4 noun + participle, eg king-sized; man-eating; face-saving
  - 5 adjective + noun, eg full-time; high-speed
  - 6 noun + adjective, eg accident-prone; lead-free; sugar-coated; tax-free
- 2 Compound adjectives usually come before the noun they describe. However, they can also come after certain verbs.

Example: He's a well-known film star.
He's quite well known.

Practice

Replace the relative clause in italics. Use an appropriate compound adjective below.

environmentally friendly face-saving hard-working high-speed lead-free ready-made sugar-coated

- 0 Firms will compete to employ individuals with talent who are willing to work hard.

Firms will compete to employ hard-working individuals with talent.
- 1 There is an increased demand for products which do not cause pollution
- 2 Sales of petrol which has no added lead have soared in recent years.
- 3 Many doctors still prefer to prescribe tablets which are covered in sugar for children.
- 4 Many commuters now travel from London to Paris on trains which travel very quickly.
- 5 Foods which have been prepared in advance are a popular choice for working parents.
- 6 The government was forced to make a compromise which would avoid further embarrassment.

Unit 4 Defining and non-defining relative clauses

- 1 Relative pronouns: We form relative clauses using these relative pronouns: which, who, whom, whose, that, where, when, why. Which, who and that are used most frequently.

Example: Chocolate contains substances which are known to affect the hypothalamus.

Example: Men who eat modest amounts of chocolate live longer.

- 2 Defining relative clauses: these identify the person or thing we are talking about. They provide essential information in the sentence. In defining relative clauses we can use that in place of who, whom or which.

Example: Example: Chocolate contains substances which/that are known to affect the hypothalamus.

Example: Men who/that eat modest amounts of chocolate live longer.

Non-defining relative clauses: these add extra information or a second idea to the main idea. Non-defining relative clauses do not provide important or necessary information and are separated from the rest of the sentence with commas.

Example: Peter, who/whom I introduced you to last night, is the new Regional Manager.

We cannot replace the relative pronoun with that.

3 Subject and object relative clauses

The relative pronoun can replace the subject or the object of the relative clause.

Subject: Chocolate contains substances which/that (they) are known to affect the hypothalamus.

The subject relative pronoun is followed by a verb. We cannot leave out the pronoun.

Object: Chocolate is something which/that/zero many people feel guilty about eating (it).

The object relative pronoun is followed by another noun or pronoun. If the clause is defining we can leave out the relative pronoun altogether.

I see an excellent doctor, who/whom a colleague recommended.

Whom is more formal than who.

- 4 Participle clauses: In academic writing it is common to replace a relative clause with a clause containing a past or present participle.

With an active verb we use a present participle. When the active verb is progressive we leave out the relative pronoun and the verb to be.

Active verb: The woman who is sitting next to the door has been looking at you. Do you know her?

When the verb is passive we keep the past participle and leave out the relative pronoun and the verb to be.

Passive verb: The article which was published in yesterday's Times could be useful.

Note: We cannot reduce the relative clause when the relative pronoun is the object of the clause.

eg The man who(m) I was telling you about is over there, NOT

The man I telling you about is over there.

Practice

Are these sentences right (R) or wrong (W)? Correct those which are wrong.

- 1 I was given a prescription for an acne medication which worked wonders for my complexion.
- 2 There are powerful forces, that are affecting the way doctors treat their patients.
- 3 Your doctor is not supposed to be an authority whom determines the course of action necessary.
- 4 Many drugs are available as over-the-counter remedies that consumers choose them themselves.
- 5 The patient has become like a customer ordering from a menu.
- 6 A sick patient is visiting a healthy care-giver will be entering into a one-sided relationship.
- 7 There is an inequality in the doctor-patient relationship that no amount of education can resolve it.
- 8 Governments, that are worried about the increasing cost of medication, are reluctant to pay for it.
- 9 Consumers, encouraged by drug companies, are becomingly increasingly confident about their ability to make medical decisions.

Unit 5 The passive

Use

- 1 We use the passive when the person or thing responsible for the action, or the agent, is unknown, obvious or is less important than the action, event or process. The passive is commonly used in academic writing and in descriptions of processes.
- 2 In many passive sentences the agent is not mentioned. Hurricanes are named to avoid confusion about which storm is being described. (No agent).
- 3 We do not mention the agent when the subject of the active sentence is a pronoun. eg We name all tropical hurricanes. All tropical hurricanes are named by us.

Form

We form the passive using the verb to be in the same tense as the active verb followed by the past participle of the active verb. When the agent is mentioned we use the preposition by.

eg The scale for measuring wind speed was devised by Sir Francis Beaufort.

The most commonly used active-passive transformations are:

	Active	Passive
Present simple	identify / identifies	am / is / are identified
Present continuous	am / is / are identifying	am / is / are being identified
Present perfect	has / have identified	has / have been identified
Past simple	identified	was / were identified
Past continuous	was / were identifying	was / were being identified
Past perfect	had identified	had been identified
Future simple	will identify	will be identified
Future perfect	will have identified	will have been identified
Modal verbs	will / may / could etc. identify	will / may / could etc. be identified

Practice

- 1 Put the verbs in brackets into an appropriate passive tense.

Did you know?

- 1 To meet the demand for hardwood, 4.5 million hectares of rainforest 1 _____ (log) each year. Hardwoods take hundreds of years to mature, so they 2 _____ (cannot/easily/replace).
- 2 Topsoil can take 1000 years to develop, and yet it 3 _____ (can/destroy) in less than 10 years.
- 3 The rainforest contains such a density of plants that it 4 _____ (call) 'the lungs of the world'. The atmosphere on which life depends 5 _____ (create) by the exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide which takes place when sunlight 6 _____ (convert) into energy.
- 4 Forests absorb solar energy. Now that they are disappearing, the 'shininess' of the earth's surface 7 _____ (alter). As a consequence, in the near future wind currents and rainfall 8 _____ (disrupt) and weather patterns worldwide 9 _____ (affect).

Unit 6 Conditional sentences

Use

- 1 We use real conditionals to talk about a possible situation and its result.
If/When you boil water, it evaporates. = The situation is always true.
If public awareness is raised, then real changes will take place. = The speaker believes that the change is likely if public awareness is raised.
- 2 We use unreal conditionals to talk about unlikely, hypothetical or imaginary situations.
If tourists were more considerate, there would be far less damage to the environment. = The speaker believes it is unlikely that tourists will be considerate.
If laws had been enacted earlier, there would be fewer issues to discuss today. = The past cannot be changed.
- 3 The modals used in conditionals are often will and would. However, other modals like could, may and might can be used to express less certainty about the result.
  - 1 In first and second conditional main clauses we use may, might and could in similar ways to talk about possibility.

If X happens, then Y could/may/might happen.

- 2 Could not and could not have done can change the meaning of the main clause.

If tourism were banned, then many businesses may/might not survive. = It's possible that many businesses would not survive.

If tourism were banned, then many businesses could not survive. = It's certain that many businesses would be unable to survive.

- 3 Unless has the same meaning as If ... not ...
If X doesn't happen, Y will happen = Unless X happens, Y will happen.

- 4 Provided (that) and unless cannot be used in unreal conditionals.

Unless new laws are enacted, future generations will pay the price.

~~Unless new laws had been enacted, future generations would have paid the price.~~

Provided new laws are enacted, future generations will have fewer worries.

~~Provided new laws had been enacted, future generations would have had fewer worries.~~

Form

- 1 In real conditionals when the outcome is always true, we can use:

If/When + present tense, present simple
When it snows/is snowing, the children love to go outside to play.

When the outcome is likely to happen, we can use:

If + present, will / could / may / might
If you tell/are telling me the truth, I'll forgive you.

- 2 In unreal conditionals when we talk about an unlikely or hypothetical situations in the future, we can use:

If + past simple/continuous, would / could / may / might + infinitive
If I had enough money, I'd buy a new car.

In more formal speech and writing we often use were in place of was after if:

eg If tourism was/were banned, businesses would be affected.

When we talk about an imaginary situation in the past, we can use:

If + past perfect, would / could / may / might have done / do

If you had told me the truth, I could have forgiven/could forgive you.

Practice

Re-write each sentence so that it contains the word in capitals.

- 0 Anyone who wishes to work in the tourist industry must speak English and one other language. IF
If you wish to work in the tourist industry, you must speak English and one other language.
- 1 The city was not chosen as the venue for the Olympics because the public transport system was inadequate. WOULD
- 2 Because governments don't invest enough money in protecting the environment, future generations will suffer the consequences. UNLESS
- 3 Assuming no delays, we should be at our destination by midday tomorrow. PROVIDED
- 4 Winning the lottery would allow me to travel the world. WON
- 5 The government ignored economic warnings and as a result the country is in recession. IF
- 6 Edward doesn't speak Spanish so he wasn't offered the job in South America. BEEN
- 7 Before the invention of the airplane travel to distant parts of the world was impossible for most people. WOULD
- 8 It's best not to apply for the job if you really don't want it. UNLESS

Unit 7 That - clauses

Use

- 1 That may be used as a conjunction which connects a clause to a larger sentence. That has no real meaning.
- 2 Clauses beginning with that may:
  - 1 report speech, thoughts, feelings or information
eg The Prime Minister has announced that he will step down.
  - 2 indicate an attitude towards a situation or event
eg The Prime Minister is certain/confident that the war will be won.
eg It is unlikely that he will prove to be correct.

Form

- 1 That-clauses can occur after verbs (announced, show) or adjectives (certain, confident, unlikely).
- 2 That-clauses may follow verbs or adjectives in sentences beginning with It.
eg It is hoped/unlikely that the situation will improve.
- 3 That-clauses which form the subject of a sentence may follow The fact (that)... or In spite of/Despite the fact (that)...
eg The fact that unemployment has fallen (sentence subject) does not necessarily mean that the economy is strong.
- 4 That-clauses should not be confused with defining relative clauses where the relative pronoun (that, who, which, etc.) replaces either the subject or object of the relative clause.
That - clause: It is clear that immediate action must be taken.
The clause following that contains all of its grammatical parts and could function independently as a sentence.
Relative clause: I have a number of ideas that (they) could help to improve the situation.
The relative pronoun that replaces the subject of the clause. The relative clause could not function independently as a sentence.
- 5 Some reporting verbs, eg tell, take a direct object before the that-clause.
eg Alex said that if I wanted the job I should apply for it.
eg Alex told me that if I wanted the job I should apply for it.

Practice

Put the verbs into the table. Use a dictionary to help you.

admit announce argue assume assure claim convince deny estimate inform insist persuade pointout remind recognize

Verb + that -clause eg say that	Verb + Object + that -clause eg tell someone that

Unit 8 Linking expressions

Use

- 1 We use linking expressions to show:
  - a the relationships between ideas in a sentence or paragraph
  - b the structure of a text
- 2 We often use linking expressions in academic writing and argument to:
  - a show that an action, event or conclusion is a result or consequence of something: *so, *therefore, *thus, as a result.
  - b support (through an example) or restate information or arguments: *for example, **eg, that is, **ie, such as
  - c show a contrast between two ideas or between less important information and the main point: *although, *however, despite, in spite of, nevertheless, on the other hand, whereas/while
  - d list or add information or reasons to support an argument: first, second, lastly, *furthermore, in addition, as well as
  - e explain purpose: *in order to; in order / so that, *so as to
  - f to indicate a reason: because (of), since
- 3 Linking expressions are also used in academic writing to:
  - a express time: *when, after, before, until, as, since
  - b express a condition: *if, unless (See Unit 6)
*These expressions are common in academic writing.
**These expressions are not commonly used in academic writing.

Form

- 1 Conjunctions connect clauses to form a sentence.
eg He left his parent's home because he wanted to live independently.
Because he wanted to live independently, he left his parents' home.
  - a Some prepositions also act in this way, but prepositions are followed by a noun, eg despite, in spite of, because of + noun.
eg Despite growing up in a city, he preferred country living.
Despite the fact that he grew up in a city, he preferred country living.
  - b Some words can act as prepositions or conjunctions, eg since.
eg He hasn't lived at his parents' home since last month. (preposition)

Since he was no longer living at his parent's home, he was forced to spend less. (conjunction)

- c Some conjunctions can express more than one meaning, eg as, since, while.
eg Since he's left, the house has felt empty. (time)
Since he had to stop and change the tire, he was delayed. (reason)
- 2 Linking adverbials connect a sentence to another sentence or to a paragraph.
eg Finding somewhere to live can be difficult. However, the more time and money you have to spend the easier it can be. For example, ...
  - a In academic writing, the most common place for the adverbial is at the front of the sentence. The next most common position is between the noun and the verb.
eg Therefore, our work here is finished. Our work here, therefore, is finished.
  - b Most, but not all, adverbials at the front of a sentence are followed by a comma.

Practice

Complete the first part of a Task 2 essay with an appropriate linking expression.

Some people argue that city officials should provide public works of art, 1 ____ others argue that they should put resources into efficient services and an effective infrastructure, 2 ____ communications and transport systems.

3 ____ putting a focus on infrastructure seems sensible, it does not necessarily mean that this would always be in the best interests of the city. In many cities, public art attracts people, 4 ____ making them popular locations to work and visit. 5 ____ the popularity of London is partly due to the famous buildings and statues, 6 ____ the city having some serious infrastructure problems with an aging underground and a congested road system.

7 ____ I believe that public art is a major factor in a city retaining a skilled workforce and remaining an attractive destination for tourists.

Unit 9 Talking about the future

- 1 For some of the ways in which we refer to the future in English see Unit 1.
- 2 When we are talking about future events there is always a degree of certainty attached to what we say. We use will and shall to show that we are very certain that an event will take place. Other modals like may, might and could show that we are less certain about the likelihood of an event.
eg By 2050 the world's population will have exceeded 1 billion in number. (The speaker is certain.)
By 2050 the world's population may have exceeded 1 billion in number. (The speaker is less certain.)
- 3 We also use expressions like certainly, (un)likely, probably and possibly to show how certain we are about something happening.
eg They'll probably be late, because they nearly always are, NOT They may probably be late.

Form

- 1 We form the future perfect using will have + past participle.
eg By next year I'll have finished my College course.
- 2 We form the future continuous using will be + present participle.
eg By 2050 the majority of the world's population will be living in cities.
- 3 We say X will probably/definitely/certainly + infinitive ..., but X probably/definitely/certainly won't + infinitive ...
eg He will probably be late BUT
He probably won't be on time.

Complete these sentences. Use either the future perfect or the future continuous.

- 1 In the next century, people (live) on the moon.
- 2 By 2050, scientists (discover) how to turn lead into gold.
- 3 Twenty years from now, doctors (produce) the first human clone.
- 4 In the 21st century people (use) virtual technology for home entertainment, in place of television.
- 5 By 2010 all fuel-burning engines (replace) by 'greener' energy devices.
- 6 By 2100 humans (travel) to different galaxies to explore and colonize.

Unit 10 Articles

- 1 The indefinite article (a / an) is used with singular countable nouns. We use a/an
    - a when the person or thing is new to the reader/listener because the person or thing
      - has not been mentioned before.
      - is not already known to the reader/listener.
    - b when we mean any person or thing of a particular type.
eg You need a dictionary for this exercise.
    - c when we say what type, class or group something belongs to, or what job someone has.
eg My father is a computer programmer.
  - d with a singular countable noun when we use one example to make a generalization. Note that zero article with a plural noun has a similar meaning.
eg A computer needs to be checked occasionally for viruses. or Computers need to be checked regularly for viruses.
  - e with some expressions of quantity, eg a few, a lot, a great deal
- 2 The definite article (the) is used with countable and uncountable nouns. We use the:
    - a when the reader/listener knows which person or thing we are referring to because:
      - the person or thing has been mentioned before.
      - it is obvious because there is only one, eg the sun, the earth, the beginning/end
      - it is clear from the context or situation.
eg Would you open the window, please?
    - b with singular countable nouns when we make a general statement about a class or group of people or things. Note that we can use the zero article in the same way.
eg The car is a popular means of transport. or Cars are a popular means of transport.
    - c when we refer to parts of a thing or parts of the body.
eg Using a computer can cause injury to the wrists and arms.
    - d before dates or periods of time, eg the 12th of September, the 1980's.
    - e when we explain which person or thing we are referring to by using a relative clause or a prepositional phrase, eg The school which I attend specializes in Information Technology.

- f before an adjective to form a noun which refers to a group or class.
eg The rich have better access to information than the poor.
- g Other uses:
- before superlative adjectives, eg the most efficient system
  - before the names of seas, deserts, rivers or groups of mountains, eg the Pacific Ocean, the Thames, the Sahara, the Alps
  - before plural countries and republics, eg the United States, the Republic of China

- 3 Zero article ( $\emptyset$ ) is used with uncountable and plural countable nouns when we are referring to people or things in a general way.
eg Information is widely available. (information in general)

The information they sent was misleading.
(specific information)

Other uses:

- before institutions in general, eg She is in ( $\emptyset$ ) hospital. He goes to ( $\emptyset$ ) school.
- when talking about travelling by a particular form of transport; eg I travel to work by ( $\emptyset$ ) car, bus, etc.
- before the names of individual mountains or lakes, eg the Himalayas but ( $\emptyset$ ) Mount Everest; the Great Lakes but ( $\emptyset$ ) Lake Superior
- before the names of streets, towns, countries, counties, states or continents, eg I come from ( $\emptyset$ ) Canada.
- before the names of meals, eg What time is ( $\emptyset$ ) dinner?

Practice

Complete the text. Use a/an, the or leave the space blank.

Research into mass communication research started at 1 ___ beginning of 2 ___ twentieth century. However, it was not until after 3 ___ Second World War in 4 ___ United States that 5 ___ possibility of 6 ___ communication science was first discussed. In fact, it was 7 ___ mathematician, Claude Shannon, who first provided the stimulus to 8 ___ social scientists to think about 9 ___ communication in model form.
